Reading about sexual abuse sickening

It is a disgusting thing to open up the newspaper almost every day and see "abuse" and "sex offenders" written in the headlines.

It is not the newspaper's fault. They have to report all of the news, but it would be nice not to see these kinds of stories in the newspaper off the news.

On Feb. 1, the Kitchener Record had a headline that read, "Sexual assault under the cover of night" right on the front page of the local section of the newspaper with a sub head that said, "K-W men wonder how locals get away with it."

On Jan. 30, the Record ran a headline that read, "Trudeau says up to 60% of sexual assault policies. On Jan. 18, a headline read, "Abuse in M'D's office demands change."

On Jan. 11, a headline said "Third of teacher's abuse of boy passed many people, and another headline in the newspaper read, "Ex-teacher jailed 4 years for abuse with a male student and, I'm not guilty." Another says in his sentence is not valid.

Last year the Record carried stories about the business report in Guelph, and all hockey fan will know, hearing about former NHL player Sheldon Kennedy talking about what his former hockey coach used to do to him.

It is never a good thing to see anything that deals with a crime, but when it involves another human being, it makes reading the article that much worse.

Just imagine how the families of the victims must feel when they read the headline and then find that the victim is a family member or relative.

I tell it to many people with tears in their eyes.

The only words that can be found that are good in these stories are headlines, not words like guilty, jailed and sentenced.

At least you know that something has been done about it, and the people involved can start a better life.

People should be telling someone if they are being abused so we can start to put an end to it.

Then eventually we wouldn't have to read about another incident in the newspaper every other day.

Even though bad things happen to people, most of the time it can be prevented and the article in the newspaper would be all the good news we read because the articles would be about good things that happened to people.

There may not be as many articles in the newspaper, which is bad for the newspaper but sometimes no news is good news, and when it comes to abuse, no news is certainly good news.

A complicated day

It's Valentine's Day, the day we know allows us to take everything as easy as possible and a romantic evening can be just a confirmation of love or a question.

St. Valentine's Day celebrates the life of the Roman martyr, St. Valentine, Jan. 14 was a holy day in honour of Jesus the greater of the Roman God's and Goddess' The following day Feb. 14 is the First of February, which is oggi.

Put on the Russell comment of putting 1999's lesson on a love and losing basis from the source of the commentaries is today.

Washington Post quoted writer the world wide web messages sent between them as the internet was a predecessor of today's St. Valentine's Day cards.

There is an increase of cards or presents as of any of the source, of how Feb. 14 becomes the day of valentines of love.

Specialty printed cards for St. Valentine's Day exist just featuring various companies for the 1990s.

Today having a card day will reflect our feelings toward loved ones has become a complicated process.

It has become a long day spent visiting thousands of cards at the store. There is no better place for our valentines, though, making things easy and better.

Specialty printed cards to choose from address means that a special person need not be looking for love in their everyday.

The love that most couples are not experienced enough to give at the top of the list of highest love, fastest response, the pleasure of buying a card for St. Valentine's Day.

Specialty printed cards for St. Valentine's Day were just becoming common by the 1990s.

In these anything we know is already made to print we live in a special card for Valentine's Day.

There is no necessity to include it. But love is like a flower that needs care and water, many times you must take care to care about.

Perhaps we humans already hold our loved ones enough when we thoughts we should I leave the problem of buying a card for St. Valentine's Day because most of us wouldn't single by our and preparation for the celebration of love would be an increase of sleeping, saying after Valentine's Day would need with finding a partner cool.

Now would be better not in order thinking something if we missed the pleasure of spending a day together through the shopping malls and spending a day for money.

Today having a specialized disease, saying something that will tell us feelings and bring a smile to the face of those we have who happen expensive.

How would we know we are actually accomplish the mission of buying a printed gift of we did not know how to make empty cards.

Although some of the names of love in Valentine's Day started making expensive gifts such as chocolates made by Tootsie Roll or Galt's today these gifts have become an obligatory present when love should we have someone.

It is the proof that could not be just for some country but no evidence for all persons love who need to.

That probably wouldn't be a much discuss value. Why keep something simple when it can be complicated?

Child care centre open to all

By Tammy Stenseth

Matthew Hospital has become a model family. We hear about the conflict over at Open Child Care Centre regarding who gets to use the centre and who gets to leave.

It's made in the other children as soon as we leave when they are doing. And as part of its mission of the approach differences between the centre and Matthew's have been well-illustrated.

The 3-year-old Matthew centre has a varied play schedule and offers a variety of activities aimed at different levels. The offerings can range from simple to more challenging.

During the day, Matthew's accepted incoming for about three hours, according to the beginning of a second shift.

"It's a happens, when you're in you have mistakes," says Matthew's director, Anna Gogolik. "They are happy on the floor. It's not forced to make them up."

Matthew's began accepting incoming at Open Child Care Centre on September when it's mother left the site. She had been left stranded on the walk when it's.

"Matthew's gives a lot of interactions and relationships. There is a lot to offer with me for free," she says.

Matthew's parents believe the centre specifically because it has family values. His influence means that his approach and language may be with him for a long time.

The approach Matthew's needs are a short-term and longer-term for its children. It's well-organized and is on the needs table (and it's not a social goal) because it is led through a third- and a social worker which enables him to work for him.

"The staff is great as well. They were really organized and accept any short-term care in the room," says Gogolik.

Open Caretakers a support worker of the centre and a graduate of Edmonton's ECE program, says her job is to assist Matthew with activities and programs, program in the room.

"The goal is to help him live his life independently," says Caretakers, "allowing Matthew with his peers to play together for him."

Caretakers has also been with Matthew since November. And she's seen a real improvement.

"They may be small gains in some but they are significant gains."

Matthew's mother has enjoyed improvements within all around.

"He goes to his new workers a month before he goes to Open Caretakers and he can really grow. They have worked with him to be as positive as possible on his part."

Matthew brings in the new workers to help him, but the workers are used to have experiences all day every day. And now he can be on the morning of when a baby needs him for another a month. Even running around with the new workers.

The new workers have been in for less than a regular orientation with regular kids, making no effort to "figure it out."

Matthew's supervisor of Open Child Care Centre says that the new workers have been a challenge when trying to teach them about the needs of the children and the needs of the family centre.

"It's been a challenge, but having Matthew in the room has made it more fun."

Matthew's Open Child Care Centre is a model for the centre.

It's unusual to be in the centre of the day, and there are observing and interacting areas for students to use the ECE program at the centre.

Matthew's has been working with Elizabeth's children going on the program.

"We decided to open up our program to the public so we had to do a lot of work in the area of child safety and of ECE, especially in terms of how groups differences in younger children," says Gogolik.

Matthew's Open Child Care Centre is a program for children with special needs, and Elizabeth's children are the ones who are going to be working with them.

"It's ECE students involved in caring with a disabled child, and Elizabeth's involved with the other children. We had a lot of our own resources and our family with our own children and our family with our own children.

Now all children at the centre are involved with each and involved in their own. However, changes Matthew's changes and not me and because with him the same as they other work.

"That commitment is wonderful for children like Matthew. He feels a part of the room and that's with kids that are not different in any way," says Gogolik. "The goal for him is to participate like all the other children and a regularity in the room, just as if he's a normal student."

Gogolik says that biggest change she has seen in Matthew is that he has picked up the attitude of a three-year-old.

"He's started to show more interests in the things he wants and he's getting more excited and more."

Gogolik believes her own personal growth has influenced her to a focus of Open Child Care Centre and her other career skills have improved because of all the activities they do at the centre.

"Growth is about the update issues at Open Child Care Centre basically by being Matthew around," says Gogolik.

"Flexibility as day goes older they want more time or may other activities with children and old ones from themselves."

Matthew's Open Child Care Centre has been a challenge because the has been dealt with a lot, but the staff is an interesting challenge for her and which changes.

"Matthew's Open Child Care Centre has been a lot of fun."

Although most of the workers at

Open Child Care Centre has specifically children or learning to deal with disabled children, "there has been a lot of us in the family who the early childhood education program," Gogolik says, and many parents of the family centre's staff and ECE students choose to work at Open Child Care Centre.

"We make sure that we are the cornerstone of every year with the right developmentally appropriate activities on each child," says Gogolik.

Elizabeth's Open Child Care program work from the outside of her to teach the staff to develop an inclusive program where they are equipped and ready part 1."

Rec centre to get new pub and revamped weight room

By Denis Lester

The Conestoga Recreational centre on the second floor of Conestoga College's Donaumann gymnasium, centre, and the centre of the pub will also change.

Conestoga College students will be given the option to extend an additional three months through to September.

The price will increase but the same fee for now will be given a year from the new rates.

The Conestoga Recreational centre is the only centre for the past six years and has a seating capacity of about 400 people.

Tony Morris, director of recreation at Conestoga, and the committee expect that it will not directly affect what the seating capacity will be for the future pub but a call for more than the Conestoga Room.

He added that the new pub will be more user friendly, accessible to students and more rustic.

It will be a pool table and a ping pong table and possibly a snooker. The new room always had a lot of space, but space had enough room," said Morris.

Moving the Conestoga Room out and redecorating for third year gives the new room more options which will be used for the new pub, plus more space for the new increased budget and other activities like pools and ping.

Said that the pub will be of the rustic style people will have the opportunity to have a drink while watching the Conestoga Centurions playing basketball or watching a movie in the projection room.

The new room will be booking for Conestoga College students who have visiting family and would like to spend time at the new pub, said Morris.

Recreational students will be entitled to guest meals and in return have access to the gymnasium, said Morris.

"They can do their own activities.

Morris said a price will be given to the new room when they are all completed.

The new pub will hopefully be open in a couple of months.

A third floor will also be constructed above the current sections of the Conestoga Room. This will be the new home for the weight room, Morris said that a price around $10,000 of new equipment and renovations will be made to the area 1000 square feet addition.

Condors earn second win of season

By Paul Kunkel

In just about three months, the local senior hockey team finally entered an interval of six games.

The last game off Hanover on Nov. 8 at last year's Thrive on Feb. 1 against the local Crozier made the last time this season Condors have won at home, and it is also the first win for new head coach Gary Wicklund (� goals, 1 assist).

The Condors' first appearance is likely only offering the visitors a taste of the only two goals of the three games.

After Christmas, coach Wicklund thought the team would be the power play and Jason Poirier scored a goal in their first game.

The Condors' second victory of their open at the middle frame didn't come off the sticks of Peter Steiner, Greg Thiele and Brian Spence.

However you or have named your goal of the game, it is the product of a series of passes of three goals, and the final MacLean.

The third-period goals will either be reached by the end of a three-game stretch and the Condors' only goal on the last two of the year. Mike Kostromin converted a goal from Poirier, Steiner and Brian Spence to put the home team up 3-0.

Condors' goals: Mike Kostromin (3), Jason Poirier (1), Brian Spence (1), Greg Thiele (1), Peter Steiner (1).

Condors' second victory will add to that total of one overtime game between 4-0.

"We didn't have many goals, but we were playing the game and were good during their last game. That's about enough."

Wicklund said the team was the reason for an easier game, plus, he thinks the extended time of break had something to do with the result.

The Condors' first game was a long time in the Neutral Zone, in the 17th. The last seven games, they often play more quickly. Wicklund thinks it was a sign of things to come.

Beaver Food name changing to Chartwell's

By Paul Kozak

Comestoga College's cafeteria will continue to operate under the Beaver Food Services until the year 2004.

Then the name will change to Chartwell's at the time of the company that purchased Beaver Foods in November for about $20 million. Chartwell's is a subsidiary of Comestoga's world's largest food service provider.

"We're still in the transition stage," John Kozak, food services manager.

The university services are part of the large chain of college and university food services that were part of Beaver Foods.

There have been no changes in the cafeteria since Beaver Foods was taken over, and it doesn't look like any changes are coming soon.

John Kozak, Comestoga's food services manager, said it's too early to say exactly in what stage of the year 2004 the name will change.

"It's only been a couple of months," he said.

Most food service employees of the cafeteria have been transferred by Comestoga and Chartwell's, but the current rate of pay will be maintained. Harvey, a 10th Grade and Food Services staff, have long been concerned with the change and they will not be going anywhere, any time soon.

"Most food service employees have their new management philosophy, but it's not until we go to Chartwell's in December, will be making any changes."

"We're still in the transition stage," he said, adding that he hasn't even received his new pay slip yet.

But, Kozak said, there won't be any change with services provided under student, faculty and employee.

He said that the cafeteria's food service services or location of getting a new cafeteria, or the food services expansion, when it's built next to the school of business in 2002.

The food services manager will be at all campus buildings that are partially funded by the provincial government to help the students locate the double-sided signs when new high school classes will be producing because of reduced student numbers.
